Two PhD positions in philosophy (70%)

Institution: Institute of Philosophy, University of Neuchâtel

Location: Neuchâtel, Switzerland

Duration: 4 years

Starting date: 01.10.2018

Application Deadline: 24.08.2018

Job description

The Institute of Philosophy of the University of Neuchâtel invites applications for two PhD positions as part of the SNF-research project:

The Nature and Value of Efforts

Successful applicants will write a doctoral dissertation under the supervision of Pr. Olivier Massin, on topics related to the project (available here: https://www.academia.edu/37015529/The Nature and Value of Efforts SNF Project 2018-2022).

Successful applicants are also expected to co-organize workshops and talks related to the project, to attend colloquium talks of the Institute and to organize the project's weekly seminar. They may be given the opportunity to teach.

Knowledge and experience needed for the job

The candidates must have obtained a master's level degree in philosophy (or equivalent) before taking up the position. Knowledge of French is not required.

Salary scale: 47'040 CHF to 50'040 CHF per annum.

Application procedure

Candidates are requested to submit the following application materials in a single pdf-file to olivier.massin@me.com: (i) cover letter; (ii) short research proposal (connection with the project may be loose at that point, the proposal should first reflect the own interests of the applicant); (iii) all available transcripts of grades; (iv) recent writing sample; (v) one letter of recommendation (sent independently to the above email address by its author).

The deadline for application is August 24th 2018.
