

IBIO EXTERNAL SEMINAR

2 APRIL 2026

12:15–13:15

ROOM F200

Ek del Val de Gortari

Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México

Arthropods in the new agricultural era: how bugs are responding to new management approaches in milpa fields

Arthropods underpin ecosystem services essential for sustainable agriculture. Mexican maize agroecosystems have been simplified, but there is a trend toward more diverse, traditional systems. We are documenting how this re-diversification influences arthropod diversity, community composition, and ecological functions that support crop productivity, resilience, and overall agroecosystem sustainability.